LOVING LANIER

New manager seeking ‘deeper connection’ with community

BY BOB DEMAREE
Marnie Leist accepted and began her new job as manager of the Lanier Mansion State Historic Site without ever having seen the historic property or Madison, but she’s already feeling comfortable with the job and loving being in the community.
“Madison is really a remarkable town,” she said. “I think the community’s decision to preserve its downtown” has made it a special place. “People come here from far and wide. It’s incredibly unique. So I feel really fortunate that I can be a part of it.”
And for her, it’s a thrill to be managing the Lanier Mansion. “It is the gem of the city,” she said. “It’s how everyone refers to it.”
Leist said she is looking forward to better involving the Lanier Mansion, already popular with tourists, with local residents to reconnect the site with the community and its residents.

Plan Commission OKs parking requests for 2 businesses

BY MARK CAMPBELL
Madison’s Plan Commission on Monday approved parking considerations that will help clear the way for two new businesses to be developed — one on the hilltop and the other in downtown Madison.
A boutique hotel locating at 111 East Second Street and a restaurant planned for 746 Clifty Drive are both required to provide handicapped parking to meet Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) requirements plus the hotel is additionally required by city ordinance to have at least one parking space per guest room.
The hotel, being developed in a former Madison Courier warehouse by new co-owner/developer Matt Chandler, must have an ADA parking space and eight spaces overall for its proposed eight-room operation. Chandler said the building has about three spaces available next to the alley on its north side but needs a commitment for a handicapped space on Second Street in front of the building and access to additional parking either street-side or in the nearby city parking lot at Mulberry and Second streets to the east.

Hanover’s website update could come more quickly

BY BOB DEMAREE
Plans an updated website for the Town of Hanover could develop sooner than later as town council president Kenny Garrett reported on the project at Tuesday’s town council meeting.
Garrett said the town has been working with CivicPlus, a web development business headquartered in Manhattan, Kansas and the same company currently used for the Jefferson County government website.
Discussions about updating the town’s website began late last year with hopes of providing more than basic information and bill payment, to better utilize the website to promote tourism events in Hanover and the parks department. Since the key goal was tourism, Garrett and council member Debbie Kroger approached the Jefferson County Board of Tourism in December to seek funding support, and they plan to follow up at JCBT’s meeting later this month.

Garrett said developing the contract with Civic Plus will involve an $8,000 three-year annual contract divided evenly between the town’s portion and the parks department.
He said the annual rate is still being negotiated. “I don’t think it will be as high as initially thought,” although he also needs to finalize whether there are additional beginning costs in getting the website set up before determining exactly how much the town will seek from JCBT, which he hopes to know by Friday.
Garrett said “there’s a lot to” the improvements CivicPlus will provide for the town’s website. “It’s a lot more than we’re going to use, but you can’t pick and choose what you want. It’s everything or nothing,” he noted. “It’s got everything we need, and then some.”

Garrett also said CivicPlus representatives told him “it only takes 15 weeks to get everything really up and running. We were shooting for this time next year” to have the website improvements in place, but “it’s going to be well before fall” when the website will also feature parks and senior citizens events and other community activities, along with the town information.
In other business, the council:
• Announced that Hanover Township Fire Company has received a $2,500 grant from the America’s Farmers Grow Communities that can be used for anything safety related.

• Kroger reported that the town is seeking an $8,000 grant from the Community Foundation for 500 redbud trees to make available for residents throughout the town. “We won’t know if we can do it until we know if we get the grant,” she said. But if the town does the receive the funding, she expressed it will be a great way to beautify the town by planting redbuds throughout the community.
• Kroger said the town council is continuing to look for residents to serve on the Go Green committee to assist in enhancing ways to be more environmentally conscious in Hanover.

Fraternal clubs opening up to music scene

More and more often these days, the old-line Madison fraternal clubs that we’ve always thought of as private and closed to the public are opening up a couple days a month to share live music. The VFW, American Legion, the Moose and the Elks have all been popping up on the weekly music calendar of late.
If you’re not familiar with these clubs, the atmosphere can best be described as old-school throwback cool. They’re smoky (with the exception of the Elks), they’re dark, and they’re friendly. The bands tend to be straight ahead rock and roll and/or country. More often than not you’ll find a pool table and maybe some dart boards. If you’re looking for a classic hang-out night with some of your closest friends, you won’t be disappointed.
So if you see one of these clubs in our weekly music calendar, rest assured they are open to the general public that

Firefighters battle home fire, two brush fires

BY THE COURIER STAFF

A Wednesday morning fire in the 1700 block of Marshall Street in Madison resulted in the loss of the family pet and damage to the home.

Madison Fire Department and Madison Police Department responded to the report of fire inside the residence at approximately 5:50 a.m.. The first units to arrive found heavy black smoke and confirmed a working structure fire.

Smoke detectors had alerted the occupants of the fire, and they were able to exit without injury. However, A family pet remained in the structure and died fro smoke inhalation.

The fire was brought under control in approximately 20 minutes and the home vented to remove the smoke.

The cause is under investigation by Madison Fire Department but at one point during the response the occupant told firefighters smoke was first seen around a floor outlet in the living room.

Meanwhile, Madison Township and Rykers' Ridge firefighters were called to two grass fires — one on Tuesday afternoon that was put out quickly and other just after midnight on Wednesday that was more challenging.

On Tuesday at approximately 4:25 p.m., there was a grass fire on Dawson Smith Road west of Madison Precision that spread from a burn pile of tree limbs. Madison Township Fire Chief

Robert Black said that after recent moisture from snow and ice it might have seemed safe to burn the limbs, but Tuesday's high winds provided dry enough conditions for the fire to spread. Firefighters from Madison Township and Rykers' Ridge responded and Black said "we got that one knocked out quickly."

Then at 12:06 a.m. on Wednesday, firefighters were called to a second grass fire on Dugan Hollow Hill Road that got into the hillside and was more laborious to contain so additional manpower was needed with Madison Township and Rykers' Ridge fire departments calling for assistance from Madison Western Fire Company No. 3.

Black said a drone was used to provide assistance in keeping firefighters on track with the spread and location of the fire.

"It was very beneficial, a great asset," Black said of the drone. He said it took about 3½ hours until the fire was finally contained, using 2,000 gallons of water. The origin of the fire was undetermined, said Black.

Wolf trial date rescheduled a fourth time

Murder case jury trial set for July 25

BY THE COURIER STAFF

The jury trial of a former Madison Correctional Facility officer who is charged with two counts of murder and one count of attempted murder in Indianapolis has been postponed for a fourth time.

Kristen L. Wolf

Kristen L. Wolf, 30, of Madison, is accused of stabbing to death Victoria Cook and Dylan Dickover at an apartment in the 5600 block of Portsmouth Avenue shortly after 8 p.m. on May 11, 2020. Cook, 24, was pronounced dead at the scene while Dickover, 28, died later at Eskenazi Hospital in Indianapolis. A third stabbing victim, Cook's roommate, Elizabeth McHugh, was wounded and transported to Eskenazi Hospital where she was treated for her wounds and survived.

Wolf could face death or a prison sentence between 45 and 65 years on each of the murder charges and 20-40 years in prison on the attempted murder charge, which is a Level 1 felony. She is also charged with battery by means of a deadly weapon, a Level 5 felony punishable by one to six years in prison, and has been incarcerated in the Marion County Jail since her arrest on May 22, 2020.

The trial, originally scheduled for Oct. 5, 2020, was first postponed to Dec. 28, 2020. That date was then canceled and rescheduled for Sept. 13, 2021. The September trial date was pushed back to Feb. 7, 2020 and that date has now been rescheduled for July 25, 2022.

According to Indianapolis

Metropolitan Police, a witness who was Cook's roommate, said Wolf stabbed Cook after she answered a knock on the door of their apartment. Dickover tried to stop the attack but was stabbed in the leg, severing a major artery.

According to an affidavit in the case, Cook had broken ties with a "violent" man she had been dating who was "teaching them to kill with knives and axes."

A neighbor identified the man that Cook had dated as Wolf's current boyfriend, the affidavit said.

After the attack, the suspect left a hat behind at the scene with an Indiana Department of Correction patch and a tag with the name "Wolf," the affidavit said.

An internal affairs investigator with the IDOC matched the description of the suspect with the last name "Wolf" and found Kristen Wolf, according to the affidavit. Police then tracked down Wolf in Madison where she worked for the local state corrections unit.

Police picked up Wolf from her job at the Madison Correctional Facility on May 22, 2020, but she denied being in Indianapolis on May 11. A search of Wolf's Madison residence on May 22, 2020 found several "combat style knives" and uniforms with patches identical to the patch on the hat found at the crime scene.

A 2009 graduate of Southwestern, Wolf had worked at Madison Correctional Facility from February 2014 until May 22, 2020, when she was "terminated based on allegations of criminal actions" being investigated by IMPD.

Police also found on her bedroom nightstand a two-page note in which Wolf had written about what it would be like to kill someone and how she took inspiration from serial killers. Authorities said Wolf also wrote that she did not want to kill anyone she knew and that she was planning to die but was prepared for it. Police said Wolf had also attached to the note a will she signed on May 11, 2020.

Wolf was arrested and transported to Indianapolis where she is being held without bail.

COVID-19 cut me off from my kids

Dear Annie: I'm a mother of three children who mean everything in the world to me. I gave them everything I could and loved them with all my heart.

The pandemic was the start of lots of hard things. My daughter, who is the youngest, moved in with her older brother because of financial difficulties. But he had also been laid off from a pharmacy position he had held for 15 years and was having difficulty finding a new position. He was going to charge her rent to help with his situation.

I had offered to have her come home to live with me and my new husband rent-free. She chose to live with him, I think partially to stay as independent as possible. She was 27. He was 39. They were very close, even though they are 12 years apart.

She wasn't able to consistently pay him, and he became more frustrated because of his situation.

I was going through my own challenges, as my husband was laid off and was finishing a program for engineering in order to upgrade his skills and get a better job for himself.

My oldest boy in desperation called and asked for help. It took a lot for him to ask me. He never had before.

I had to say no because of my financial limits, and he cut me off and has never forgiven me. My daughter has done the same after they argued, and he told her she had to leave.

Before this, my children were part of my life, and we were close and always able to work things out. It's been almost two years now, and I still struggle with what to do, cry when I think about them and miss them so badly. I worry about them, and as a mom, I don't think I'll ever feel anything as painful.

Financially, I know I made the right decision, as all of our savings are gone, and we work hard and go from paycheck to paycheck even though we are in our 60s.

I didn't think I'd ever be without my children, and I don't know what to do. — Heartbroken

Dear Heartbroken: As a parent, there is nothing harder than being without the love and company of your children. I am so sorry that you have been distant from them for the past two years.

However, boundaries are important, even with family. Given your financial situation, you had no choice but to deny your son's request for money. Had either your son or your daughter been truly desperate, they would have taken you up on living with you and your husband rent-free (a generous offer, I might add).

The past two years have been taxing for us all, and it sounds like both of your children are hitting rough patches both personally and professionally. The best thing for you to do — in fact, the only thing you can do — is show them an outpouring of unconditional love. Call them. Write them letters. Show them how much you care. In time, they will make their way back to you.

My sister only sees in red and blue

Dear Annie: Lots of folks had a hard time with the 2020 presidential election. I look at it like this: You vote, but sometimes, your person doesn't win. That's OK; it's just the way life goes. However, my sister doesn't have such a relaxed position on it.

I had to listen to her rant and rave for four years, never getting my opinion in because her rants were so crazy that I just had to redirect the conversation to her grandchild. So, after the election, she was still upset and started her typical rant. I couldn't take it anymore. I told her who I voted for, and there was an awkward silence. Then she said, "I guess I'll have to try and forgive you." I told her that would NEVER be necessary.

We all have the right to vote, no forgiveness needed. She ended up hanging up in my face. I haven't spoken to her since. It's been almost a year now. I don't miss her. We were never particularly close, as she moved thousands of miles away from our family when I was a teenager (I'm in my 50s now). She's a VERY negative person in general, and I'm the total opposite. Am I a horrible person for not wanting to reconcile? — Irreconcilable Sisters

Dear Irreconcilable Sister: You are right to want to distance yourself from this kind of negativity. Family or not, any interaction like what you've described is exhausting and unproductive. Focus on the fruitful, nontoxic relationships you have in your life. Surely, you have many that bring you more than just headaches. And hopefully, your sister will come around one day and realize there's far more to sisterhood — and life — than winning.

Dear Annie: I read with great interest the letter written by "Nostalgic and Regretful," who was wondering what could have been with her high school boyfriend 47 years ago. I have a similar story, along with similar guilt, but for different reasons.

Twenty-eight years ago, I was engaged to my first love. Being young and insecure, I thought we were "having problems" one week, and as she was not being as friendly as my dumb self expected,

I thought she was about to break up with me and did the deed before she could. We didn't see or speak to each other again for nearly three decades, and it was all my fault.

This story does have a happy ending. After each of us had been married and divorced — twice — we reconnected and are engaged once again. We are planning our wedding for next January.

But I hold so much guilt. There are things that happened in her life that simply would not have, had I not acted so poorly all those years ago. She's told me not to think that way, but it's difficult not to. I guess I wanted to send "Nostalgic" a word of understanding, and at the same time agree with you, Annie, and encourage her not to beat herself up. — Same Boat

Dear Same Boat: Within your story is a valuable lesson that it sounds like you've learned: Instead of allowing your fears to sabotage your relationship, address them with your partner. You lost out on 28 years with this woman because your insecurities took over.

The fact that you made it back to each other after two marriages and nearly three decades is the stuff that romance novels are written about. Be grateful for that.

Cole scores 1,000th as Southwestern pulls away to beat South Ripley 72-55

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

Long after Tuesday's game had ended — and after most people had a filed out King Gymnasium — a group of young fans known as the Little Rebels stood on the court chanting the name of their favorite player.

"We want Zach Cole! We want Zach Cole!"

Moments later, when the Southwestern seniors emerged from the locker-room, he was greeted by cheers and squeals, and began signing autographs for every youngster still in attendance.

Cole scored a career-high 21 points to lead Southwestern to a 72-55 win over Ohio River Valley Conference foe South Ripley at home on Tuesday.

Cole's last two points came in typical Cole fashion, a strong short jumper from the baseline after he had worked his way in between two South Ripley defenders. They were also the 1,000th and 1,001st points of Cole's impressive high school career, making him the 13th player in program history to reach that feat.

Cole's milestone basket came with just 43 seconds left in the game and the final outcome all but decided. Southwestern called a timeout to present Cole the game ball and then he posed for a picture with the student section, which had come out in force to celebrate his moment.

And 20 minutes after the game, he was signing autographs for the 20 or so odd kids who were chanting his name.

"It's awesome. It's a moment I'll never forget," Cole said. "The support from the Little Rebels, our student section, the community, my family friends, it's just a moment I'll never forget. Walking out of that locker room and listening to the chant from the Little Rebels was just awesome. And I'm so excited for the future of Southwestern basketball. I couldn't be more thankful."

Cole is the fourth Rebel to reach 1,000 points in the past three seasons but unlike former teammates Tyler Kramer, Foster Mefford and Matthew Williams, Cole isn't an explosive scorer who lights up the scoreboard every night. Coming into the game he needed 20 points to reach the milestone and considering that he had scored 20 only once before, it seemed unlikely.

Despite that pressure, Cole didn't seek out the mark so much as let it come to him as Southwestern pulled away from their conference rivals. He scored his final six points in the game's last two minutes as the Rebels were icing the win.

"Somebody asked me before the game if I thought he'd do it and my response was 'Yeah, if he shoots it,'" Southwestern coach Zac Nussbaum said. "He's so unselfish. He led us in assists each of the last four games. He knew that he was close to 1,000 but he didn't care. He knew that it would take care of itself. He will do whatever it takes to win."

Southwestern (14-5, 5-1 ORVC) battled South Ripley for a quarter and a half before the Rebels put together an 11-0 run late in the second quarter to gain some breathing room. Cole had six points during the run and added an assist as the Rebels took a 35-26 lead into the break.

Southwestern pushed that margin to 45-31 midway through the third quarter before South Ripley put together one final run, closing the gap to nine (56-47) with 4:32 to play in the game.

It was Cole who ended the Raider run with two free throws. Moments later, Jamison Lewis splashed down a 3-pointer that pushed the margin back to 14. The Rebels pulled away from there and the only question was whether Cole would get his 1,000th. The milestone basket was the final points the team scored in the game.

"I think you obviously have in your head but I don't think it really changes how you play. Truthfully, it didn't really start clicking until late in the fourth quarter when I got the 19th point," Cole said. "It's one of those things that you're going to have in the back of your head but I try the best I can not to really think about it."

Cole's 21 points led the Rebels with Parker Davis scoring 17, Peyton Gwin adding 12 and Colton Cloud scoring 10.

Blaine Ward scored 20 points to lead South Ripley and Zach Gentile added 16.

The win was Southwestern's seventh-straight as the team is starting to peak at the right time.

The Rebels host Jennings County on Friday and travel to Scottsburg on Saturday.

"I've been really proud of our guys. We started off well, we kind of dipped down but everyone's buying in and our team chemistry is awesome," Cole said. "I really liked how we're playing. We've got a couple tough games coming up and then the sectional but we'll take it one game at a time. I can think we can make it a good run."

Shawe takes control in 2nd half to beat Cornerstone 47-31

BY JORDAN BEAR

Shawe learned the hard way that you can never overlook a team, but whatever coach Dan Hambrick said at halftime must have worked because the Hilltoppers broke open a one-point game to pull away to a 47-31 win over Cornerstone Christian Academy Monday at home.

Shawe had added Cornerstone late to its schedule and, as a result, the Hilltoppers had little time to prepare. But for Hambrick, the lack of preparation time was no excuse.

"When you don't know anything about a team, there's a lot of unknowns from what to expect from them," Hambrick said. "As I told them at halftime, you never overlook a team no matter who the opponent is. Overlooking an opponent is a surefire way to find yourself on the losing end. Fortunately, my guys got the message and came out strong."

The first half was a story of turnovers and foul trouble for Shawe, which had multiple players with two fouls and struggled to take care of the ball. That resulted in the Hilltoppers trailing 11-9 after the first quarter.

Shawe got off to a better start offensively in the second but still struggled with fouls while also getting out-rebounded on almost every possession to leave the Hilltoppers clinging to a one-point lead at halftime.

The second half was a different story. Shawe came out with a purpose in the third, scoring the first 10 points of the quarter to extend its lead to 11. A timeout didn't help the Bulldogs and the Hilltoppers continued to pile on, extending the cushion to 20 points en route to nearly pitching a shutout in the quarter. A bucket with 15 seconds left in the third was Cornerstone could produce and Shawe held a commanding 38-23 lead.

At that point Shawe put the game on cruise control and Hambrick sent in its seniors to celebrate senior night.

Seeing a victory on senior night was special, said Hambrick, especially for senior Louis Liu who led the Hilltoppers in scoring with 13 points.

"That kid is a fireball and he goes hard on every single play and so does his brother (Eric)," Hambrick said. "This is, I'm pretty sure, the first time that he's ever been the leading scorer and to do it on senior night is really special. I'm so happy we could give our seniors a victory on the night we honored them."

In addition to Liu's 13 points, Jack Grote and Philip Kahn each scored 11 points. The Bulldogs were led by Edison Hendricks with 12 points.

The Hilltoppers improve to 7-9 on the season and return to action on Thursday when they travel to Seven Oaks Classical School in Ellettsville, Indiana, on Thursday before heading to Union (Dugger) on Saturday. With no home games remaining, Hambrick hopes this helps his team prepare for the sectional tournament.

"Every game for the remaining two weeks are on the road," Hambrick said. "Guess what, sectionals are on the road as well. Hopefully we can get out of this offensive funk that we're in and give us a chance come sectional time."

Defense falters as Hanover men succumb to Transylvania 86-81

BY JORDAN BEAR

Hanover had a great night offensively, shooting better than 50% from the floor and knocking down 11 3-pointers. The problem was, the defense struggled to get stops all night.

Transylvania shot 60% from the floor and pulled out an 86-81 win over Hanover in men's basketball Tuesday at Collier Arena.

Hanover trailed 44-37 at halftime but opened the second half on fire, surging ahead 61-58 after putting together a furious rally. However, the Panthers responded with a 5-0 run of their own to reclaim a 2-point lead.

Hanover was able to grab the lead on two other occasions in the game, but both times Transylvania stayed right with them and retook the lead. Ultimately, Hanover couldn't put together enough stops and the Panthers ran out of time to drop their first home game of the season.

The Panthers were led by Isaac Hibbard with 28 points while Ty Houston scored 16 and Max Grenamoyer added a dozen. The Panthers were led by Zach Larrimore and Hunter Penn, both with 21 points.

The loss drops Hanover to 18-4 overall and 14-3 in the Heartland Collegiate Athletic Conference. The loss doesn't affect the Panthers in the conference standings since they've already claimed the HCAC regular-season championship and the top seed in the HCAC Tournament.

The Panthers will wrap up their regular season on Friday night when they travel to Mount St. Joseph. They will then host an opening round game in the HCAC Tournament on Sunday.

WOMEN FALL TO NO. 4 TRANSY

Hanover's hopes of hosting a home game in the upcoming HCAC Tournament took a blow with a 77-54 loss to fourth-ranked and unbeaten Transylvania Tuesday on the road.

The Panthers (12-9, 9-7 HCAC) came into the game third in the HCAC standings but dropped to fifth with the loss. Hanover wraps up the regular season on Friday at Mount Hanover's Isaac Hibbard drives to the basket past Transylvania's Zach Larrimore during Tuesday's game at Collier Arena.

St. Joseph where a win would go a long way toward getting the Panthers back into the top four.

Transylvania (20-0, 12-0 HCAC) took control of the game early, leading 24-12 after the first quarter and 50-26 at halftime.

Hanover outscored the Panthers by one in the second half but it just wasn't enough.

Freshman Katherine Benter scored 11 points to lead the Panthers while classmate Taylor Heath had eight points. Callie Wilder came off the bench to score eight points and grab six rebounds.

Laken Ball led Transy with 17 points.

Bengals extend Taylor through 2026

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CINCINNATI — Zac Taylor, who led the Cincinnati Bengals to the Super Bowl in his third season as coach, was signed to a five-year contract extension, the team announced Wednesday. Financial terms were not disclosed.

Taylor was 6-25-1 in his first two seasons leading the Bengals, his first head coaching job. They improved to 10-7 in 2021 and went on an improbable run through playoffs before losing 23-20 to the Los Angeles Rams in the Super Bowl on Sunday night.

The 38-year-old Taylor is now signed through the 2026 season. He had one year left on his previous contract.

"The fruits of Zac's efforts were seen this year, and Zac is well-regarded by our players and coaches," Bengals owner Mike Brown said. "I know the effort and passion Zac brings to the building and to our team, and I am pleased by his approach. And I think the city of Cincinnati sees him the way the players and I do. He's brought excitement to the town and deserves credit and recognition for that."

"Of course, this isn't all about me," Taylor said. "This is about all the people in the building who are working toward a solid future for all of us. And so I'm excited for everybody, you know, because I certainly feel like the future is bright. There's a lot to build on. I'm happy here. My family is happy here. I love coming into the building every day."

HIGH POINT, N.C. — Tubby Smith has announced he is stepping down as head coach of the High Point University men's basketball team.

Smith, who won a 1998 NCAA Championship while coaching at Kentucky, will be replaced by his son and current associate head coach G.G. Smith for the remainder of this season and next season. High Point said in a release that Smith feels after contracting COVID-19 for a second time in less than a year and having been away from the program for an extended period that the timing is right for this change. Smith will remain at High Point to assist with alumni, community engagement and fundraising for athletics. In four seasons, the Panthers are 45-68 under Smith, including an 11-15 mark this season.

No. 16 Vols handle No. 4 Kentucky

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. — Santiago Vescovi scored 18 points and Chandler Kennedy added 17 to lead No. 16 Tennessee to a 76-63 victory over No. 4 Kentucky on Tuesday night.

Zakai Zeigler and John Fulkerson each added 14 points as the Volunteers (19-6, 10-3 Southeastern Conference) ran their home record to 14-0 this season with their eighth straight SEC victory.

The Wildcats (21-5, 10-3) were led by Oscar Tshiebwe's 13 points and 15 rebounds. Jacob Toppin and Davion Mintz each scored 11 points.

"(Tennessee) needed it more; they wanted it more," Kentucky coach John Calipari said. "They banged us around. You've gotta own your performance. Can't let anybody alibi. We got manhandled. "It was a revenge game."

Kentucky beat Tennessee 107-79 earlier in the season.

"The biggest difference (between this win and the earlier loss) was that (Kentucky) scored 32 points off (20) turnovers," Tennessee coach Rick Barnes said. "Tonight, they scored seven (off eight Tennessee turnovers)."

Tennessee led by 14 at halftime. Kentucky cut the difference to eight midway through the second half. That's when the Vols went on a 12-0 run, holding Kentucky scoreless for nearly five minutes.

"At the half, I said,

"Why don't we make a comeback?" " Calipari said. "We got it down to eight and had the ball twice but turned it over. We had our chances."

Calipari pointed to the backcourt as being a determining factor.

"Their guards kicked our guards," Calipari said. "They have to own that."

"Their guards combined for 48 points the last time we played them," said Chandler, who had all but two of his points in the first half. "They're great scorers. We knew we had to defend them."

It was a heated atmosphere from the start. More than 20,000 fans crammed into Thompson Boling Arena for the game in which three technical fouls were called in the first seven minutes.

Calipari got rung up arguing a foul call. Then, a double technical was whistled when Fulkerson went headlong into the Kentucky bench, prompting some pushing and shoving.

Getting guard TyTy Washington (12.8 ppg) healthy is imperative for the Wildcats for their stretch run. He sustained a lower leg injury in Saturday's win over Florida. He played in the first half, but went to the bench early in the second half.

Point guard Sahvir Wheeler had missed 19 consecutive shots over three games before making a 3-pointer against the Gators.

No. 15 Wisconsin humbles Hoosiers

BLOOMINGTON — Johnny Davis packed a powerful closing punch Tuesday night.

Indiana couldn't counter.

The sophomore guard scored the final 13 points for No. 15 Wisconsin, finished with 30 and boosted the Badgers' Big Ten title hopes with a 74-69 comeback victory over the Hoosiers.

"He can create something out of nothing sometimes," Wisconsin coach Greg Gard said. "That's what players of the year, MVPs do. When the game's on the line they show up."

Davis certainly did. He was 10 of 15 from the field, 10 for 14 at the free-throw line and had 12 rebounds before waving goodbye to the Indiana fans. Brad Davison added 21 points and seven rebounds for Wisconsin (20-5, 11-4), which remained one loss behind conference-leading Illinois.

The Badgers have won five straight in this series and 23 of the last 26 overall against Indiana, including a 22-point comeback in December.

For the Hoosiers (16-7, 7-8), it was a night filled with frustration.

Trayce Jackson-Davis had 30 points, eight rebounds and six assists, and Race Thompson added 13 points and eight boards. But again they couldn't finish, and this time the reason was Davis. Indiana has lost four in a row.

"He's that type of player and it's hard to double him because a lot of times he's up top, making plays off the bounce," Hoosiers coach Mike Woodson said. "It didn't mater who we put on him, he just played a good game and coming down the stretch, nobody could play him."

“I was incredibly fortunate,” she said. “I got to be part of the team of a very ambitious tribal museum who wanted to advance exhibits and programs, and create very meaningful experiences.” Leist began as the registrar and became curator of collections before taking over as director of operations. “It was overall a very enlightening and rewarding experience,” she added.

By 2017 Leist had decided it was time for a career move and that involved relocating back to the lower 48 states.

“I wanted to be a leader of an organization,” she said. “I felt that I had learned so much that I wanted to be able to share that experience with smaller, local museums. I like all kinds of history.”

In January, 2017, she was named executive director of the Brown County Historical Society in New Ulm, Minnesota, but was there only a short time when she was hired as executive director of the Shawnee Tribe Cultural Center in Miami, Oklahoma, in October of 2017.

Leist said she was actually recruited by the Shawnee Tribe to guide the creation of the cultural center, where she received two awards for designing and curating the first exhibit there. Since the Shawnee Tribe Cultural Center was located in northeast Oklahoma near the borders of both Missouri and Kansas City, Leist said she and her husband, Troy Lindstrand, actually lived in Kansas along Route 66 during their four years there.

“I have had an amazing and successful career, helping establish two museums as leaders in the field by pioneering innovative and award-winning programs and exhibits,” Leist said. “I am so pleased to join the Indiana State Museum and Historic Sites team to serve the community in sharing the remarkable history of the Lanier Mansion.”

Leist loves being closer to her family in Dayton and feels a connection to the historic preservation efforts in downtown Madison.

“My parents were very instrumental in their neighborhood in Dayton in revitalizing it back in the 1980s and 1990s,” she noted. “They restored three homes themselves, so I grew up in that environment ... I have always had an interest in architecture.”

she said, adding that Greek Revival — which happens to the architectural design of the Lanier

Mansion — “actually being one of my favorite styles ... But I appreciate all kinds of architecture. That’s actually what drove me to (the Lanier Mansion) is that it is so architecturally significant.”

As site manager for the Lanier Mansion, Leist is actually working as part of the overall Indiana State Museum and Historic Sites team rather than being on her own at the stops in Alaska and Oklahoma.

“I really enjoy being a part of the state museum team. I’m not on my own, scrambling ... doing every single thing by myself,” she said. “There’s a support network and I really enjoy being a part of that team.”

Managing a historic museum involves a lot of story telling as a way of sharing that history to be appreciated by current and future generations. She’s looking forward to being able to share the story of the Lanier Mansion and James Franklin Doughty Lanier.

“James Lanier was really fascinating,” she said. “He was really an advantageous entrepreneur. So I think he had some very relevant stories. It invokes imagination to imagine the time that he lived in, the work that he was doing, but it’s still incredibly relevant in terms of entrepreneurship.”

HOT TIP OF THE WEEK

I’ve made no secret of my love for Jordan Wilson and his Coalition of great supporting musicians. He played at my daughter’s wedding, after all. They’ll be at The Taproom on Friday, and that makes for an unbeatable live music experience. On Saturday I’m intrigued by the show at Mad Paddle. It’s a DJ Night with Rick Bernius from WORX. That’s kind of unique for our music scene, which tends more to live performance. Should be fun. And finally, on Sunday, the Madison Performing Arts Foundation is serving up their annual Young

Thursday, February 17PARKING

Plan Commission members approved the requests but noted that since parking is already in short supply along that corridor — especially at peak times — they were reluctant to set aside parking exclusive to hotel guests.

Brian Martin, the contractor working on the project and a former building inspector for Madison, said the request was necessary to meet zoning requirements and providing access to the parking was a small ask in terms of the impact of the project will have on the area since the owners will be renovating and historically restoring the structure fore repurpose.

“For Madison to grow, this is what you have to do to figure out how it will work,” Martin said. “This is low impact for the investment they are making on the block.”

Chandler said the hotel will initially open five rooms on the second floor and then add three more in the first floor. He said the accommodations will be boutique in that they will include amenities like kitchens but that guests will be short term for stays of a week or less and no rooms will be used for long term rental or leasing.

The Commission approved allowing motel guests to park in the 54-space Mulberry lot and to designate an ADA space on Second Street in front of the hotel. However, all spaces will be first-come, first served so hotel guests will have no more access to the parking than other motorists.

The second parking request was by Nathan Grimes for a proposed Jimmy John’s sandwich franchise development in the 700 block of Clifty Drive. The restaurant, which anticipates doing most of its business through drive through and carryout sales, needs 10 parking spaces overall with one designated for ADA use. To accomplish that, the project’s designer said the development will need setback considerations.

The request was for a zero lot line for the property to accommodate drive through and pass through lanes for traffic but the actual building will have an 80-foot setback from Clifty Drive with 45 feet on the east, 25 on the west and 95 feet to the north.

Giannis pours in 50 to lead Bucks past Pacers 128-119

BY RICH ROVITO
ASSOCIATED PRESS

MILWAUKEE — Giannis Antetokounmpo scored a season-high 50 points, two off his career best, and pulled down 14 rebounds to lead the Milwaukee Bucks past the skidding Indiana Pacers 128-119 on Tuesday night.

The Bucks (36-23) swept the four-game season series from the Pacers and have won eight straight against their Central Division foe.

Antetokounmpo, who didn't play in Milwaukee's loss to Portland on Monday night because of a sore left ankle, showed no ill effects as he racked up 12 first-quarter points that included a pair of thunderous dunks and a 3-pointer.

"I felt way better," Antetokounmpo said. "I was rested."

Antetokounmpo set a career high with his seventh 40-point game of the season and scored 50 for the first time since the memorable title-clinching game in the NBA Finals last season against Phoenix, which gave the Bucks their first championship in 50 years. It was the fourth 50-point game of his nine-year career, including the postseason.

The NBA Finals MVP shrugged off the accomplishment.

"Obviously, it's a nice feeling to have 50, you'll always remember it, but I care about the win. I want to win games," Antetokounmpo said.

"We have another one on Thursday. We'll try to finish and go to the All-Star break on a good note. As long as we're winning, I'm good. You do whatever it takes. If you are thinking about let me get to 50, let me get mine, it doesn't work that way. You have to focus on winning games."

Milwaukee bounced back after consecutive double-digit losses to hand Indiana (19-40) its seventh consecutive defeat.

Antetokounmpo scored 12 points in the first quarter, six in the second, 13 in the third and 19 in the final period. He made 17 of 21 shots from the field and was 14 of 18 at the foul line.

"He's in a good place and good rhythm at the free-throw line," Bucks coach Mike Budenholzer said. "You get 14 of those and a couple of 3-balls and it can add up for him. Fifty is never easy. It's great to have him back."

It marked only the 12th time in NBA history that a player has scored 50 or more points on 80% shooting or better.

"He makes it look so easy," teammate Jordan Nwora said.

Both teams had only 10 players available due to injuries.

Buddy Hield scored a season-high 36 points and Tyrese Haliburton had 17 points and eight assists for Indiana.

"We're in a tough stretch right now," Pacers coach Rick Carlisle said.

Haliburton said the Pacers battled throughout the game but just couldn't overcome Antetokounmpo's dominating performance.

"He made it tough on us," Haliburton said. "He's a load."

The Bucks led 34-27 after the first quarter before the Pacers grabbed a short-lived lead midway through the second. A pair of 3-pointers by reserve guard Lindell Wigginton sparked a 12-2 surge that grew the lead to double digits. Milwaukee led 69-63 at halftime, paced by Antetokounmpo's 18 points.
